The intense earnestness of Buck Herog is infectious. All of the Giants re catching it. Ambition is attacking hem like an epidemic of measles.

While Mr. Herzog was not the entire ast of the Giants yesterday, he surely ias the leading man. His base runing across the steaming paths was omething dazzling. even more futile.

It was altogether such a sorrowful and futile afternoon for the Pirates that Hans Wagner decided to retire to the shower baths early during the second game, leaving the buccaneers to their horribly humid and moistly melting the property doom.

their horribly humid and moistly melancholy doom.

The Giants got busy early in the first game. Davy Robertson sent himself and Larry Doyle over in the home half of the first inning with a home run drive into the right bleachers.

In the sixth inning the six-ring Giant circus started en masse. The McGraw men fell upon Adams and butchered him into small pieces. Doyle walked, and got all the way to third on a drive by Herzog. It was at this juncture that Buck introduced the innovation of skating to the bags on his besk. Despite the langourous weather the Giants were full of ginger on the bases. They were so rapid Lawrence and Buck, that the Firates got discouraged right then and there.

OLD TRICKS AGAIN

In fact, it was Jefferson who started the big batting rally for the Giants.

Jacobs, who started the second game for the Pirates, was working nicely until that batting rally came. Then he wilted and melted into the humid landscape, and what threatened to become a pitchers' battle cracked into small pieces.

The story of the sixth of the second is another remarkable tale of activity fur the warm weather. After this case, the dynamo, driving wheel, motor or whatever you want to call the thing that makes the Giants' speed these days. Buck cracked one safely to centre field and Tesreau scored. Robertson beat out an infield hit and Herzog stended to left and brought Merkle doubled and scored Robertson and Kauff. Fletcher singled to left and brought Merkle through.

After this exhibition. Honus Wagner, who had been melting away at the shortstops' station, headed to the clubhouse and turned on the cold water. It felt natural after the way the Giants have been throwing cold water upon the aspirations of the Pirates.

Davy Robertson was bumped out of another run in the second inning because of the languidness of Umpire Eason. Robby was on third when Kauff sent out and on the languidness of the second in the sec
